3. President Trump approved the state of Utah's disaster declaration. The declaration gives State, tribal, and eligible local governments access to federal funding, as well as certain private nonprofit organizations. The funds are to be used for "emergency protective measure" for all areas in the state impacted by the coronavirus pandemic.

4. Utah COVID-19 Community Coronavirus Task Force tweeted, "Social distancing is important, even if you're healthy. People who don't know they're sick can still spread the disease."

5. UDOH reported the first incident of healthcare-associated COVID-19 transmission in Pine Creek Rehab and Nursing 876 W. 700 S., Salt Lake City, Utah. Along with 6 patients tested positive, two staff members have also tested positive for COVID-19. An investigation and assessment of the facility was launched after the first patient was hospitalized.

6. If you received a quarantine order, please obey the order. Disobeying health department quarantine orders could be charged. KSL reports that a man who has been in "close contact" with someone who had tested positive for COVID-19 — and had been directed to self-quarantine — was seen by police roaming in Hurricane, Washington County. Hurricane Police Chief reported this incidence to the city council and made a phone-warning to him: Disobeying health department quarantine orders could be charged if he continues to defy those orders.
